8. Data Playbook Status Update and Review (Discussion for Possible Action) 15 min

The Subcommittee had a review of documents within the Data Playbook and decided on a name to potentially replace Data Playbook, finalized at the December Meeting.

Amanda Haboush-Deloye, Subcommittee Co-Chairs

- Amanda Habosh-Deloye let members know that she has 6 options for a new name to replace the Data Playbook naming of this project.
- The main focus of the new name is to include families and capture the intent of the resource.

Name Options:

1. Nevada Parent Data Empowerment Initiative
2. Early Childhood Data Literacy for Nevada Families
3. Nevada Parent Data Navigation Project
4. Understanding Early Childhood Data: A Parent's Guide
5. Nevada Families: Early Learning Data Made Clear
6. DataReady Nevada Families

- There was interest in #2, 4,5 the most, with number 2 and 4 being the most talked about and very similar.
- Anna Villatoro mentioned she liked #2 better because the Families mentioned as #4 mentioned only parents.
- Brandi Hearst described her view point, pointing out that she understood Anna's perspective and the only thing she doesn't like as much about #2 is that the audience being parents seeing the word literacy might throw them off as it typically pertains to reading and comprehension when discussing school work/projects, then suggested using the word families in place of Parent on #4 essentially the 2 options were pretty much the same at that point.
- After some discussion and agreement, the members decided to go with option 4 with the above word replacement.
- Amanda Haboush-Deloye went on to review the remaining documents that are within the Data Playbook, which consisted of:
 - o Progress Learning Article 10 Best Practices for Sharing Data with Students and Parents: Enhancing Communication and Collaboration
 - o Delaware Department of Education Family Engagement Insider (Newsletter) Headlining the article: Sharing Student Data with Families Fosters Partnerships with Learning
 - o National PTA article titled What Every Parent Should Be Asking About Education Data.
- Kate Pflughoeft asked about the privacy of data and how families will ask how their child's data would be protected, suggesting a way to make it eye-catching
- Amanda agreed and said maybe a video of a Clark County School District (CCSD) employee answering these questions would be intriguing, later suggesting to Anna Villatoro to maybe look into a parent leader asking questions on video
- Anna Villatoro agreed and thinks some of the families she works with would participate, later asking if the school district would want to be recorded and participate
- Anna Binder describes that she works closely with some CCSD employees, and she thinks they would be glad to help and perhaps even host an episode covering the topic on their podcast.
